Honouring Indigenous Peoples in Canada

Good Influence Films is joining a national movement to put Indigenous voices at the centre of CANADA 150 and you can join the movement by screening an award-winning Indigenous film

Launching in the summer of 2017, INDIGENOUS150+ provides a meaningful opportunity for Canadians to better understand the history and impact of Confederation on the First Nations, Inuit and Métis communities. By coming together to watch Indigenous films and engage in Indigenous led conversations, INDIGENOUS 150+ is an opportunity to build a more informed and inclusive work environment, deepen corporate social responsibility and offers companies a rich and meaningful way to educate Canadians during celebrate Canada 150 with their employees.

What is INDIGENOUS 150+?

As a response to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission’s (TRC) 94 Calls to Action, INDIGENOUS 150+ is a community and private sector driven national film and talk series aimed at building a more inclusive country by inviting Canadians to watch Indigenous films and to learn about First Nations, Inuit and Métis culture, history and teachings. INDIGENOUS 150+ opens an important pathway for companies to respond to the TRC calls to action and shows leadership within their businesses and the larger community.

Building on the Aabiziingwashi (WideAwake) initiative by NFB, APTN, TIFF, and imagineNATIVE Film Festival, Good Influence Films is inviting businesses to screen award-winning Indigenous films for their employees as a way to put Indigenous voices at the centre of Canada 150. Good Influence films is helping to foster respectful commemorations and facilitate post-screening discussions led by Indigenous community leaders in partnership with First Peoples Group (firstpeoplesgroup.com). Good Influence Films is working with the NFB as well as independent filmmakers to offer an exciting and diverse slate of award-winning indigenous films for businesses and communities to choose from.

By understanding and acknowledging our past, and commemorating our present we can build an inclusive and vibrant future.
